cannondale urban line 2007

System Integration:

Dient der Minimierung und Optimierung der Schnittstellen zwischen Strukturelementen. Ziel: Konstruktion eines ganzheitlichen Systems.

(Definition von C.Dodman, Senior-Ingenieur bei Cannondale)

Vor 15 Jahren wurde bei Cannondale die System Integration-Idee geboren. Seither haben Cannondale Konstruktionen und -Designs regelmäßig neue Standards gesetzt und marktprägende Entwicklungen hervorgebracht. Im Jahre 2007 wird Cannondale einen neuen Meilenstein für urbanes Biken setzen. Wir denken über den Tellerrand hinaus. Wir denken für die Stadt.

System Integration - Head Sight

Cannondale-Design ist konsequent. Das ist die einzige Regel, die für uns Gültigkeit hat. Diese Leuchte wird nicht irgendwie aufgesteckt. Diese Leuchte ist im Vorbau integriert und somit Teil des Systems. Sie ist in LED-Technik ausgeführt, einstellbar, leicht aufzuladen und hat eine durchschnittliche Leuchtdauer von 3 Stunden. Warum bloß kam niemand früher auf diese Idee?

System Integration - Kabelführung

Cannondale nutzt auch das Innere der Rohre. Also verlegen wir die Kabel dort, wo sie nicht stören. Puristisch, aber funktionell. Als Beispiel für ein weiteres herausragend minimiertes Interface direkt unter der Oberfläche. Einfach in der Wartung - immer schön sauber. Die perfekte Oberfläche wird durch ein spezielles Cannondale-Verfahren erzielt, das eine einheitliche Eloxal-Oberfläche selbst auf den im Smooth-Welding-Verfahren erzeugten Schweißnähten ermöglicht.

System Integration - Scheibenbremsenbefestigung

Wir gehen an die Grenzen des Möglichen – kann man es noch sauberer machen? Wieder eine Konstruktion, die es so nur bei Cannondale gibt: Der Bremssattel ist innerhalb des Rahmens angeordnet. Also gibt es keine Störungen der fließenden Formen. Und funktionell ist es dennoch, selbst mit einer Nabenschaltung.
