System Integration:

To minimize and optimize interfaces between structural and functional elements, achieving a system design.

(Definition by C.Dodman, Cannondale Senior Engineer)

15 years ago Cannondale defined System Integration. Since then Cannondale Engineering and Design continuously sets new standards with System Integration developments. In 2007 it is time to set a new benchmark for a lifestyle in urban cycling. We think outside the box... in the city.

Head Sight

Cannondale Design is about being consequent. That is the only rule that is set. The light is not additional. Integrated in the stem, the light becomes part of the system. Adjustable LED light, easy to charge with power that lasts for 3 hours on average. Why did no one think about that before?

System Integrated Cable Routing

Cannondale thinks inside the tube. A tube that guides the cables through the frame inside the tube. Puristic and functional. Another proof of an exceptionally minimized interface underneath the surface. Easy to maintain and to clean. The perfect surface is finally achieved with a special Cannondale procedure that allows consistent anodizing on the smooth welding.

System Integrated Disc Brake Mount

We are pushing the envelope. How pure can we make it? Another Cannondale proprietary system integration design: The brake mount is inside the frame. No disruption in the designflow and functional as well, even with hubgear.

System Integrated Rack

The biggest challenge is in the detail. The form follows the function of an urban bike: People carry loads up to 25 kg. Cannondale makes it special: smooth in design, mounted underneath the fender and on the inside of the frame.
