

BIANCHI: NO MATTER WHERE.

1990

105 years of racing-bred dominance. Since the beginnings of the sport, the center of competition bicycling has been Europe. As the largest bicycle producer in Italy, the second largest in all of Europe, and one of the largest in the world, Bianchi has been a major force from the beginning.

We now sell more than 800,000 bicycles per year.

And in the 105 years since our founding, we have won more than 1,000 major races.

In 1899, we won our first world championship. In 1986, our most recent. We have won virtually all of the European classics repeatedly, including the Tour de France, the Giro d'Italia, Liege-Bastogne-Liege, and Milano-San Remo competitions. Outside Europe, we have won additional major victories in the Iron Man and Tour of the Americas.

Our philosophy has been directly related to our racing heritage, all along. We innovate for performance and the racing environment. Then carry the principles perfected there into production manufacturing. It's a philosophy that has helped make our name recognized and revered worldwide, on every continent, wherever bicycles are sold.

Over the past several years, we have single-handedly created the Cross-Terrain™ bicycle, and become one of the largest of all producers of mountain bikes.

In an era when many of the best-known U.S. producers of bicycles are marketing-oriented firms with no particular heritage in design or in racing, we feel it is particularly important to retain the racing-bred philosophy that has made us who we are today.

It's why our factories in Treviglio, Italy, include one of the most sophisticated and modern bicycle plants in the world. And right at its heart, the "Reperto Corsa," where, bicycle by bicycle, dedicated artisans craft performance-oriented racing machines, by hand.

CROSS-TERRAIN FOR VERSATILITY, TIRES FOR COMFORT AND PERFORMANCE. When we invented the Cross-Terrain bicycle, we at Bianchi had one thing in mind: improved versatility. Today, our Cross-Terrain bicycles combine the durability you need to go off-road, with the light weight and performance you need on-road. As "Bicycle Guide" magazine noted, "This is the quintessential can-do anything bicycle." To fulfill the promise of Cross-Terrain's versatility, a wide selection of tires is mandatory. We've radically expanded the lightweight 700c tire category to provide the selection needed. We offer 700c tires for aggressive on-road, off-road, and combination uses, all centered around greater air volumes, and added comfort.

RITCHEY COMPONENTS FOR SUPERIOR STRENGTH AND PERFORMANCE. Tom Ritchey, the renowned mountain bike component specialist, shares an important objective with the Bianchi design team: improved comfort and performance, through innovation. For 1990, we've worked closely with Tom to integrate his components into our line. The new Ritchey "Force Directional," "Logic," and "V" features use advanced design concepts to concentrate strength where it's needed and minimize weight—in forks, stems, handlebars, seatposts, and rims. Ritchey's new Megabite Overdrive tires are designed for maximum mud dispersion. Finally, the Ritchey Vector Analysis tread design features a knob pattern that holds the ground better whether climbing, cornering, single-tracking, or descending.

THE NEW BIANCHI HI-WIRE CABLING SYSTEM, FOR CRISPER SHIFTING.

Our new Hi-Wire system offers easy cable maintenance and lubrication, thanks to our exclusive new cable stop. But there are also additional advantages. Mud blockage of cabling is cut to a minimum, because cables are routed across the top tube and down the seatstay, shielding them from road and trail debris. And the Hi-Wire's efficient routing makes for exceptionally crisp shifting.

WHY A GREAT BICYCLE COMPANY CONCERNS ITSELF WITH MORE THAN BICYCLES. Off-road bicycling raises some important environmental issues. Mountain bikes are often used in areas shared by hikers, equestrians, and wildlife. As a result, there's a potential impact on safety and on preservation of habitat. At Bianchi, we believe responsible off-road riding is both possible and essential. To highlight our concern, we've named our mountain bicycles after rare and endangered species. And with our newly instituted Project Habitat, we will make a donation to the environmental group of your choice, when you purchase any 1990 Bianchi mountain bike.
