

2002 HARO BIKES

Haro is a name that has been an important part of the BMX scene since day one. We got involved because Bob Haro, the company's founder, was a rider, not because it was a good business decision or because the sport was popular. Over the years we've experienced amazing growth. But we didn't get where we are today without surviving some tough times too. Times when the "experts" said the sport was dead and times when Nintendo, scooters, Playstation and Razors were getting all the attention. The point is, we're focused on producing performance oriented bikes, and we're in it for the long run, no matter what other distractions come along.

From the beginning, our approach has been pretty simple; find the best riders we can, listen to what they say, then build the products they want. We don't use fancy focus groups to learn more about you, or Madison Avenue ad agencies to tell you our story. We go to contests and races, take our own photos, talk to riders, write our own copy and produce all of our own ads and catalogs and, we actually ride bikes.

With all the contest victories and media coverage Haro riders Dave Mirra and Ryan Nyquist have attracted from ESPN, NBC and Fox Sports, freestyle has officially hit the big time. And even though it may seem like we're some huge corporation with a lot of suits running around and six smokestacks spewing black clouds out of the factory, nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is, we're small by bike company standards but we're big on building the best bikes possible.

A catalog can only begin to describe what goes into the bikes we build. We think you'll like what you're about to see, but to fully appreciate the quality and attention to detail we pride ourselves on, you're gonna have to get off your butt and get to your local bike shop. Compare what you see here to what's available from those big bike companies or from the small "rider owned" companies. We think you'll see why Haro is the leader in performance, innovation and quality.

The new Haro OS LSD cassette hub brings parts performance up a notch. Durable cassette mechanism and 4-sealed bearings provide long lasting performance.

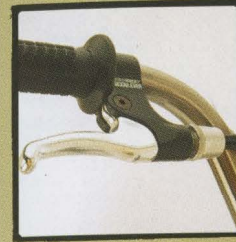

New magnesium Small Block pedals have the same grippy surface and shape as the aluminum version but weigh 1/2 pound less.

The first widely used oversized mega head tube has super thick walls eliminating ovalization. Welded on rotor stops don't flex contributing to more responsive brakes.

Master. The original Haro freestyle bike continues Bob Haro's legacy of attention-to-detail. Dual-position brake mounts allow for huge adjustments in the chainstay length.

If there is a better part available, we will use it on our bikes. Odyssey's Modulever represents the pinnacle of brake lever performance.

Originating first in 1995, the full-coverage dropout protects the freewheel from damage. Now 7-years later, the dropout is a classic and fits perfectly with our Stretch Chain Tensioner.

Cable routing on bikes with u-brakes has been cleaned up by routing the straddle cable around the seat tube. Smooth, powerful braking.

Group 1 dropouts are 3-D forged for superior strength and incorporate a very cool, trick integrated chain tensioner.

With its increasing popularity worldwide, and extensive media coverage from networks like ESPN, NBC and Fox Sports, freestyle has hit the big time. It's come a long way since the early eighties when Bob Haro was credited with starting the sport of freestyle and Haro sold the first 'Freestyler' bike. Dirt jumping and trail riding have emerged from the explosive mix of freestyle and BMX racing. With few rules and unlimited terrain, it's easy to see why it's become so popular. With input from Ryan Nyquist, we've created the Backtrail series. A collection of bikes that make the term 'heavy-duty' seem inadequate. If you're serious about quality and durability, hit the trails on a Backtrail.
